Mouser Electronics Announces New Partnership with Grant Imahara of Mythbusters Fame to “Empower Innovation Together™”

November 11, 2014, Munich, Germany - Mouser Electronics, the global authorized distributor with the newest semiconductors and electronic components, announced at electronica today a new partnership with longtime Mouser customer Grant Imahara, a celebrity engineer, best known for his role on Mythbusters. As a practicing engineer, Grant can relate to engineers everywhere. He understands the frustrations and inspirations that keep engineers challenging themselves to design the next great thing. The collaboration emphasizes Mouser’s commitment to the engineering community in bringing them the newest products and information to inspire new designs.

Mr. Imahara will make a personal appearance today, Tuesday, Nov. 11, at the Mouser Stand 524 (Hall A5) at electronica with live interviews, beginning at 1:30 pm. Photos and autographs will be available.

The “Empowering Innovation Together” campaign kicks off today. Together Mouser and Mr. Imahara will invite the engineering community on a journey to empower innovation. Mouser will create a series of webisode videos with Grant as the host, featuring unique content highlighting innovative, creative engineers worldwide. There will be features on the newest products and technical expertise to help speed new designs. The partnership will provide both inspiration and guidance, plus contribute to the culture of inventive thinking. It’s another way Mouser is personally connecting itself to engineers through innovation and creativity that defines engineering design.

Well known in the engineering community, Imahara has paired his engineering expertise with a Hollywood TV and film career. In addition to his roles on Mythbusters and Battlebots, Imahara is the inventor behind many famous robotic characters – including the Star Wars prequel-era R2-D2, the Late Late Show’s Craig Ferguson sidekick –Geoff Peterson, the talking robot, and the rhythmic arms on the modern day Energizer Bunny. He joins the Mouser team as a collaborator and spokesperson who shares Mouser’s passion to positively influence and support innovative design. Visit the site at www.mouser.com/empoweringinnovation.

“I’ve been a Mouser customer for over 20 years,” states Grant Imahara, “Their components have been a part of the DNA of almost all my major projects. It’s always been a great experience; so when they reached out to me with the “Empowering Innovation Together” campaign, I was truly excited about the opportunity. I’m looking forward to working with Mouser to empower and inspire more engineers like me.”

“Mouser is thrilled to announce our new partnership with renowned engineer Grant Imahara,” says Glenn Smith, President and CEO. “Together, it’s a great partnership because we provide the newest products and technologies, and Grant provides the inspiration and engineering expertise.”

Mouser is devoted to helping engineers speed their designs by delivering the newest electronic components and advanced technologies, along with a spectrum of resources, through its website Mouser.com. The global distributor supports inventive thinking by empowering engineers worldwide to make their ideas a working reality.
